The Sugar-Coated Pills.
A NEW SARSAPARILLA PREPARATION.
To cure Diseases, Purify the Blood! To avoid them, keep it pure!!
That PREDISPOSITION which exposes the human frame to the infection and influence of every class of disorder is produced directly or in directly, from a morbid state of the system caused by IMPURE BLOOD.
HALSEY'S SUGAR COATED MAGIC LIFE
PILLS are the inventor of the only pure and genuine Sugar coated Pills most respectfully informs the enlightened public, that this new and elegant preparation can be obtained only from the advertised agents and at the price mentioned.
No 324 Broadway, New York Price 25 cents a single box, 5 boxes for one dollar
G W LADD Agent for Bangor
Among the numerous remedies which stand reputable on the basis of an ancient name, there now
perhaps which have acquired so great celebrity, and extent in use in so short a time as this invaluable article—They have gained their high repu a tion, alone by their good works Those who once try them always use the pills They are grateful to the stomach—they invigorate the functions of secretion nutrition and circulation They restore digestion and appetite and create a natural warmth inwardly, which glows through the whole system, giving a greater vigor to the intellectual powers
per ceived by thousands and testified to their good effects After using them for a short time the hitherto wretched invalid finds that all disagreeable and unhealthy humors have fled, and the system Hale restore organs perform their proper functions; his blood regains its wonted purity the oppressive sense of weakness and pain departs and his body becomes endowed with renewed strength and vigor
—while the mind resumes its original capacity and energy—Such are the results produced by Halsey's Sugar coated Pills, the mildest, yet most effectual preparation of the kind in use In BILIOUS complaints Costiveness Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and all other disorders of the stomach they produce the most happy results Nervous, Boils Saltrheum, Tetter Erysipelas, Eruptions of the Skin, Scrofulous complaints and many other like diseases arising from IMPURE BLOOD, they have become high ly celebrated Hundreds of certificates have been received from individuals who after having taken them for a few weeks, according to the directions which accompany the boxes, were cured of the most afflicting cases of scrofulous affections They give Good Blood or Bad Bottle of the boasted Sarsaparilla contains less of the true virtues of that valuable plant and are less effectual than a single box of these extraordinary Pills In Colds Coughs Influenza Sore Throat, Headache Giddiness &c, they are recommended with entire confidence the relief in these cases is quick and permanent For Fever and Ague, Fevers Asthma Piles, Loss of Appetite, Dropsy, Jaundice Worms, Lowness, General Debility,
and many of the various diseases to which the human system is liable they have proved an infallible remedy Their action on the bowels is of the mildest character, even the most sensitive giving no complaint, yet they are searching and effective It is impossible to give an adequate idea of the great and real effects these pills produce and their superiority over every other remedy of a similar class, a trial will explain the wide difference. The unhappy invalid after having tested but a single box of them, will welcome the unexampled change wrought in his health, bear testimony to their uncommon virtues N B The coating of sugar add nothing to the great virtues of the Magic Life Pills, it is their un common powers in promoting health, on which all their merits stand, notwithstanding this addition the original sugar-coated Life Pills The proprietor is enabled to make improvement to preserve their curative virtues entire as well as to render them pleasant to the taste, yet individuals of no integrity have counterfeited other pills coated them and through the base and silly pretension to a patent are imposing them about the country, deceiving the public by disposing of them unjustly through the already acquired reputation and popularity of the genuine Halsey's Sugar-coated Pills Care ought to get the true and original Sugar coated pills, see

FOSTER'S
MOUNTAIN COMPOUND!
FOR THE HAIR,
AN ARTICLE IN WHICH THE PUBLIC MAY
REPOSE THE UTMOST CONFIDENCE.
THE MOUNTAIN COMPOUND
is entirely different from any thing ever before introduced. It combines several important medicinal qualities but no one of the simple articles of which it is composed is of sufficient power to be a restorative, or for removing DANDRUFF ERUPTIONS, or DIS-EASES from the skin of the head
Its powerful Tonic and Invigorating qualities give great beauty and richness to the texture of the hair, and in diseased scalps such as Boston, Portland, Lowell, and other places, have testified to a very great extent, to its almost absolute adaptation for disease of scalp, and for stopping the HAIR MOST A GREAT LENGTH OF TIME—longer, much longer than any thing else can and no substance is left to soil any ladies white delicate Every person who has bought one bottle of this Compound speaks well of it, and buy several more, and the proprietor feels confident to recommend it from that fact

The Public Schools of Bangor.

We have witnessed and strongly urged the utility of an excellent public school system, and a marked improvement in the City Schools. There is a disposition, and it is highly important to change our public school system by bringing our high schools. The question will be before either branch of the City Government at an early day, and we hope the well known wish of the friends of the system, and the well known wish of the other branch of the City Government, that no decisive votes shall be taken until the subject has been fully discussed, and the public understand that there is danger. We hear our friends and the friends of the present system that there is danger of the destruction of the system. We shall tomorrow even devote some space to this subject, which is now the most important one that can claim the attention of our citizens.

A strange Suit at Law.

Some two or three years since we copied in our columns, the annual report of the City Treasurer, as printed by order of the City Council. In this report it was stated that a certain sum was due upon the books in the Treasurer's department, from John Lancey Esq., as collector for a certain year named. For publishing this document Mr. Lancey has now commenced a suit against us laying his damages at five thousand dollars.

We have not yet received a copy of the writ, but we shall soon have it and then we shall know something more about it, but at present it seems to us exceedingly funny.

Great Fire at Oldtown.

The Wadleigh Mills at Oldtown containing 6 board saws, 2 clapboard machines, 1 lath, and 1 shingle machine, and a machine for planing slats, &c., were consumed by fire, yesterday, about noon.

It was said by some one at the fire, to have caught from fire used to melt lead for the machinery to run upon.

☞ The Governor arrived at Frankfort yesterday afternoon. We received a report through Jerom & Co's Express, which was brought in by a passenger. We are indebted by this mean to lay the latest news from the army before our readers this morning.

☞ Mr. Hook's target firing finely with his plan of each gun being entered separately. The price is twenty-five cents for each pupil, and a fifty cents for each family as we stated a few days since.

Later from Gen. Taylor.

We received on Monday the 2d not have been received in New Orleans and from other ports but few operations of General Taylor against the Mexicans.

It is reported that Gen. Taylor, with his forces, instead of returning unsuccessful from his pursuit of Urrea as rumored, had succeeded in overtaking the Mexican arms, near Tula. He attacked them vigorously, and met no obstinate and determined resistance. The battle lasted an hour when the Mexicans, having given a good fire, gave way, and left the field to the Americans.

On reviews it appears that among the prisoners taken by the Americans in the actions are both the Mexican Generals, Urrea and Canales.

From Mexico.

The latest dates from the Capitol are to 24th of March.

Santa Anna, it seems, took formal leave of his army at San Luis on the 14th of March, for the purpose of proceeding to the capitol, to resume the reins of the Government. He addressed his army on the eve of his departure as follows:

Companions in Arms—Devoted entirely to the service of the country, I march to assume the reins of Government in a time when nothing but unmeasured sacrifice, acting contrary to my established tastes and fixed intention. But this course will put an end to the civil war which is destroying our beautiful capital, it will save us from a fratricide war which we are engaged with the perfidious Anglo Saxons, and in which you have fought with such bravery and decision in the field of La Angostura.

My Friends—I will never forget your glorious actions on the field of battle, your sufferings in the desert, to which you submitted with heroic patience, and, above all, that I had the honor of commanding you. The nation owes you a recompense, and you shall shortly receive it through my exertions, although this is not the consideration which stimulates you to be as you are worthy sons of Mexico.

Soldiers—We are the hope of our country, be worthy of your destiny. Your city then is to guard all parts, and on this account I have disposed that two brigades of infantry and one of cavalry, with their corresponding batteries, shall march to the defence of the State of Vera Cruz, the rest of the army defending this frontier.

Everywhere you will conduct yourselves as you have done hitherto, and you will deserve the illustrious name you have acquired. I am going to acquire whatever is necessary to accomplish the great work which is committed to you, and be assured that in the hour of danger you will again find in the midst of you, your General.

ANTONIO LOPEZ DE SANTA ANNA.

Headquarters, San Luis Potosi, March 14, 1847.

Santa Anna's progress to the capital and his entrance into the city, were triumphal. He took his oath of office, as President, at Guadalupe de Hidalgo and the next day proceeded to the capitol, where he was received with great pomp and ceremony. Te Deum having been sung in the metropolitan church, &c. Gomez Farias was continued in his office of Vice President—so that the event of Santa Anna's assuming the Government is not to be considered a revolutionary movement. The Cabinet of Santa Anna is composed as follows: D. Manuel Otero, Minister of Foreign Affairs, D. Juan Rodero, of the Treasury, D. Francisco Suarez Iriarte, of Justice, and Don Jose Ignacio Gutierrez, of War.

The following is Santa Anna's inaugural address:

Señores Diputados—I have just taken the call which the law prescribes, and in doing so my mind is at once impelled with a manifestation of my sentiments and the motives of my conduct to this respectable committee of the legislative body.

The events which have taken place in the capital are well known, and are of such a character as to bind me to give them a speedy and pacific termination.

Surrounded by difficulties of all kinds, in extent in which the most important and essential to the whole nation is the sustaining of a strong and dignified struggle with a foreign power in which nothing less is involved than the existence of the nation, it would be the worst of evils to enter into a contest with those who sought only unite in repelling the common enemy.

The evil consequences ought to disappear at the imperious voice of patriotism which calls upon the sons of the country to have but one will and one aim.

The movements have been urgent. I have seen the forward steps of the enemy. I have rushed to the field to repel him, and even at the moment of doing so, I have been forced to leave a brave and valiant army, and to come hither upon the news which I have received daily and which I had decided never to undertake.

This work has been considered to be an object of my ardent desire, and my honor and my aspirations. But I am all for my country, and I shall ever serve it with a linking wind at my side, and never let that which the nation desires I should do.

I have interest upon the supreme magistracy because I have seen that it was the sole legal means of terminating the distractions of this capital, and because I believe I shall thus be able to facilitate the prosecution of the war and to save the independence and honor of Mexico, which I wish to see event unsullied and brilliant to the world which is beholding us.

I have before the committee of the sovereign Congress, of that august body whose decision I have respected and shall constantly continue to respect.

Its decisions will be my invariable guide, and I have firmly resolved to preserve a pure union with the legislative body, which union will give us a final victory and the restablishment of internal and external peace—on which the happiness of our country depends, and to which we all aspire.

The nation has proclaimed the political principles which ought to be the basis of the administration which I wish to establish.

Thus I understand that its strength will be secured for defending itself and its rights, for which its sons have those guarantees which belong to all men, and which civilization claims and which has been my aim since my return to the country.

This will not be delayed, and the nation shall still see me obedient to its wishes without my having any other rule of conduct than its decisions.

As a Mexican and a soldier, I shall always take the noble road of the nation, and I aspire to no other title than that of a good citizen, and a speaking of me that it should be said that I always loved my country—that I served it with zeal, and that I sacrificed myself for its good.

A Guadalajara paper publishes the terms offered by our Government for peace through Atocha. The principal one was a brief, fifteen millions to be paid to Mexico for the line of 26 degrees, the Pacific and the U. S. to award no expenses of the war—for expenses and claims to the extent of a sum of total of twenty eight millions, for the territory north of 26 degrees.

From the Army.

The last accounts from Vera Cruz, furnish the following intelligence respecting the movements of our army:

A expedition left Vera Cruz on the 31st of March for Alvarado, the land forces consisting of Gen. Quitman's Brigade, with a battery (Capt. Sleptoe's) of light artillery, the naval force consisting of the steam frigate Mississippi, the Potomac, sloop of war St. Mary's, steamers Vixen, Spitfire and Washington, the brig Porpoise, one bomb vessel and five gun boats. By this it would appear that the report of the capture of Alvarado was premature.

Another expedition under Gen. Twiggs, started same morning for the National Bridge, a strongly fortified place about two days march from Vera Cruz, on the Jalapa road.

Gen. Worth was engaged in assisting the government of Vera Cruz and castle.

The following vessels of war were lying at Vera Cruz on the morning of the 31st ult.

Ship of the line Ohio, frigates Raritan and Potomac, steam frigate Mississippi, sloops of war St. Mary's, John Adams, Albany, brig Porpoise, steamers Spitfire, Vixen, Petrel, Scourge, Hellcat and Vesuvius, two brig bomb ketches and five gun boats.

There were 106 pieces of artillery in position around the city, and as many more dismounted, many of the latter useless. The enemy had down about 4,000 stand of arms, and 1000 more were found in the city, saying nothing of the swords, lances, and a very large store of shells, solid shot and powder.

The great castle is garrisoned by the following companies, Capt Anderson's Capt Taylor's and Lieut Van Vliet's of the 3d artillery, under the command of Col Belton. It has 160 guns mounted, several of them 68 pounders. A vast quantity of ammunition was found in the works. Santiago Fort, is a beautiful work, with nine guns in barbette, most of them fine English pieces. But the most of the best cannon are of English manufacture, though they have some fine pieces since in the United States.

Gen. Scott ordered 10,000 rations to be issued to the suffering poor of Vera Cruz, and it was affecting to see the crowd of half furnished creatures as they gathered timidly around to receive their respective shares.

These rations will, as Mexicans usually eat, last 5000 people at least four days, but it is probable that not more than 1,000 will partake of the provisions. The city and castle were exhausted of provisions.

The city, or at least the northern portion of it, has been torn all to pieces—the destruction is dreadful. The interiors of the place would have suffered in the same way had the bombardment of the place continued another day.

It is impossible to get at the loss of the Mexicans by the bombardment, but it is certain that women, children and non combatants have suffered the most. Hardly a building South of the Plaza Grande but is either burnt, or torn to pieces, or much injured, and the streets filled with the rubbish and fragments.

The National Palace, which is on the Plaza and near the outer range of our mortars, had five shells burst within it, one of which killed a woman and two children lying asleep in the kitchen. The Cathedral, on the opposite side of the Plaza, was also somewhat injured, but the churches South of it, and nearer our mortars, suffered the most.

The amount of spoils taken by the capture of Vera Cruz, is immense. The enormous cannon and mortars, in the town and castle, is not as yet known, but it is already ascertained that there are over 300. To this should be added an immense number of powder, bayonets, musket shot, &c. &c. enough to conquer the country till the day to Zacapulco.

From Santa Fe.

The News from Santa Fe, reported by our telegraphic dispatches on Saturday, has not yet reached us in detail. The dates in Santa Fe are to the 20th of January, and relate to Colonel Doniphan's preparations for marching into Chihuahua. By the way, of the city of Mexico, it will be remembered, we have had accounts of the actual capture of Chihuahua by Col. Doniphan. In the reported attack on the Mexicans at Puebla, by Col. Price, the victory is said to have been complete—the Mexicans having been routed with a loss of 150 to 200, and the Americans losing 12 killed and 30 wounded. The Mexicans had fortified themselves in two strong large houses and a church, and were attacked by Col. Price's dragoons and infantry, and the houses and church stormed. Capt. Burgwin, of the dragoons, was killed as he was leading his company to attack.

The Mexican account of the loss of Chihuahua attributes the success of the American forces to the cowardice of the Mexican cavalry. The forces of the Americans are stated to have been 1100 and 7 pieces of artillery, while those of the Mexicans have 2000 men and 11 pieces of artillery. The Americans took possession of Chihuahua on the 2d March, and nearly all the Mexican families were abandoning the city.

Chihuahua is the capital of the State of the same name which lies West of the Rio Grande, between New Mexico and Durango. The town contains many costly church edifices, monasteries, and other public buildings. The population since 1830 has been reduced from 25,000 to 20,000, in consequence, probably, of the abandonment of the once rich silver mines in the neighborhood.—[Boston Travellers.

From the Living on Republican.

The of Newburyport and the Revolution.

Towards the close of the last century, a stranger came into the good old town of Newburyport, Mass and took up his residence among its citizens. In stature he was about six feet two—athletic in form—a quick military gait, and presenting altogether the appearance of a decayed gentleman. He rented a humble shanty near the corner of Prospect and Fruit street. Curiosity was on tiptoe to ascertain his nativity—and all the ladies in town were extremely anxious on the matter of his occupation. What could such a nice looking man be going to do? Our Hero made his arrangements very leisurely, and some weeks elapsed before the sign was displayed from the door of the shanty that revealed to the worthy citizens the vocation of the mighty gentleman. Mr Foster makes Sausages here, was emblazoned in very large letters on the shop door. Here was a wet blanket thrown over a laudable curiosity. Pshaw! nothing but a sausage maker. Yet, our military friend did not sink into immediate insignificance. His gentlemanly address, his equipoise, together with an intimate knowledge of all the men and scenes of the Revolution commended him to some consideration. His vocation had injured the respect of the greater part of the community in which he resided, but there were some very candid and worthy people, willing to listen to and converse with Mr Foster, and some were so condescending as to invite him to their houses, and to convivial parties, and to all of those gatherings where social talents are duly appreciated. All were interested in his descriptions of the battles of the Revolution—it is a more common topic of conversation, than in this progressive day, and though he seldom alluded to himself in any of his anecdotes, yet it was evident that if his stories were true, that he bore no humble part in that great struggle.

He seemed to have been on the best terms with some of the officers, and to have been engaged in some of the most important scenes of that eventful period.

In working goods our hero was prosperous—every year that added to his age, added also to his stock—the steady nature of the decayed gentleman had lent a charm since exchanged for raiment being his daily toil. His lease had been succeeded by a deed, and the humble shanty had been followed by a two story house of medium size with commodious warehouse attached where Mr Foster still sold sausages to all the region round about.

With an increase of wealth came also an increase of enemies. He had become exceedingly popular—a truth was overlooked in the rancor of human obscurity—it was very uncertain who this Mr Foster was. They began to scan his anecdotes, his stories of Revolutionary scenes were said to be falsifications.

He had hitherto refused to tell where he came from, or where his friends or relatives resided. That was very, very suspicious. If he was an honest man he must have come from somewhere.

Even boys are not generally very slow in understanding when a man is cut by the older ones—they hooted at him in the street, some of his best stories were caricatured—his vocation and gait were made to contribute to his own ridicule and downfall. They dubbed him "Sword Cannon," and any bar-room that would now receive the appellation of fish story, was there passed by with the remark that it was one of Sword and Cannon's suggest.

The ladies who had shrewdly suspected there was something wrong, since they first learn d his vocation, now discovered him almost entirely. They always knew he was an imposter, they had told their husbands so over and over again, and even the younger ladies with whom he had been a universal favorite, were obliged to admit that in them they had known him from their infancy to be a kind hearted and sociable man, and as they all loved him they could not understand why they were doomed to associate with him.

But the decision had gone forth from that great tribunal from which there is no appeal.

This was the unkindest cut of adversity with which the old man could have been smitten. He loved those girls—he loved to have them sit at his door, as they hopped to their school, and chat with him, he loved to talk with them of an afternoon—they always listened to his stories and always had a sincere laugh ready for his jokes and his simplest anecdote were always anticipated by a general giggle—They passed him coldly by now and knew him not. His morning's sail to the barber's shop had for years been the occasion of repeating his most interesting incidents—here, while waiting his turn to be shaved, had he often fought his battles over again—there had the people often listened and applauded—here they now jeered and frowned. It was nobody but "Gen. Cannon."

In silent sorrow our hero shrank from all contact with his enemies—he avoided opportunities to receive insults, and never resented one when he did receive it. He made no effort to regain his standing with his neighbors—he confined himself closely to his shop, he was soon almost forgotten by his old associates, or remembered only to be execrated.

Year after year toil and sorrow glided slowly away. There was no longer any doubt but that the sausage maker was an imposter, because everybody said so.

At length, the newspapers came freighted with the rejoicings of a great nation at the arrival of the "Nation's Guest." In all parts of the Union, will never be travelled, all were eager to testify the affection for Lafayette.

It was soon ascertained that he would pass through Newburyport, on his excursion. The whole town was in a blaze. Meetings were held, committees appointed and all necessary arrangements were made to receive the Great Man in a manner becoming his great services to the Cause. Guns were fired—processions were formed—addresses delivered—the town illuminated and every demonstration of joy was in progress. Our informant, who is one of the most ingenuous of gentlemen, and the best of fellows in the State, was on that day assisting upon the veteran as a page of his bedchamber. It became his duty to rehearse a speech to that distinguished individual, in which he told him that the room in which he then reposed was that occupied by George Washington—that in his last return here he had put up at that house, and lodged in that very room—that the furniture—the curtains, the chairs and the toilet table, were the same—that no article that he saw around, had ever been changed or moved since his former companion had left the apartment. Lafayette expected a tear to the memory of George Washington and kissing the boy bade him good-night.

The morrow was to be the grand day of reception. It came, and though it brought a strong wind and rain, yet before seven o'clock the town was filled with people from all the neighboring towns, anxious to shake by the hand the Nation's Guest. At twelve the clouds had kindly dispersed, and the sun again enlivened the busy town of Newburyport. Its citizens came out in crowds, and all wended their way towards the lodgings of Lafayette. The father of our informant was the master of ceremonies, and introduced, in an easy and gentlemanly way, all the teams to him who all came to see.

At length, when the congregation in and about the veteran's lodgings was the most dense, when it seemed as if all were there, a tall and venerable gentleman, in the costume of the Revolution, was observed coming down the street. His cocked hat, his blue coat with white cuff lapels and facings, his top boots and black military stock, and above all his erect and military step attracted universal attention.

On his nearer approach, the crowd were astounded to discover their old enemy, the sausage maker.

"Honor and shame from no condition rise."

They unceremoniously fell back, and our hero passed in unto the General's Room. Looking neither to the right nor left, he walked through the receding mass and stood directly in the presence of the hero of the two Hemispheres. With a slight inclination of the body he raised his right hand in a military salute, in a most dignified manner, and exclaimed "Monsieur le Marquis?" The veteran slowly rose from his seat, and, drawing his hand across his eyes, as if wiping a long cloud of years from his memory, exclaimed as he fell into his arms, "My old friend, Captain Fosters, my best friend—with me in all the battles—and side by side we entered Yorktown—come to my heart, my long lost friend."

Captain Foster was not suffered to leave his old companion while he remained in Newburyport. When he left our hero he returned to his shop, but his destiny had been filled—he had lived down his enemies, who now crowded around him with all the zeal of new born friends.

Within two months of this time Captain Foster lay down with the dead. The names of his parents or the place of his nativity, he never disclosed.

'Low me to Toat yer Bar-Skin.

The Baltimore Western Continent tells the following good one, combining gallantry with keenness.

Some two weeks since, a young gentleman from one of the Southern States came to Washington to endeavor to obtain an appointment in one of the new regiments about being raised to Mexico. It was his first trip to the North, and having traveled right straight thro' from Atlanta to Washington, without stopping on the road, he had a better chance of feeling than seeing the effect produced by the change of climate. On the day of his arrival he was introduced, by the member from his district, to several young ladies, with one of whom it fell to his lot to walk from Gadsby's to the capitol.

It was bitter cold, and the young lady was provided with a ponderous muff, now so fashionable an article of dress at the north. Our hero was in a dilemma—what to call it, or for what purpose it was used, he did not know. But one thing he did know, and that was, that it was anything but polite for a gentleman to allow a lady to hear such a burthen. He scanned it with much coolness for some time, he could not divine what it contained, but was perfectly familiar with the skiver and unable longer to restrain he extended his hands saying—

"Miss Julia, 'low me to toat yer bad skin?"

"Thank you sir—I am very comfortable," replied Miss Julia, blushing very red.

"Oh, taint no trouble in the least," replied our hero, persisting in relieving her of her burthen.

The merry girl at last consented, rather than enter into a mortifying explanation, and taking the muff under one arm, can here flirted her fan to his fair companion, with whom he marched boldly to the avenue of the capital.

It is needless to add that he soon discovered his mistake, or that he has from that hour held all ladies muffs in utter abhorrence.

Look Out.

When a stranger offers to sell you an article for half its value look out.

When a man becomes drunk, and you don't happen to have the necessary funds to treat, look out.

When you find a man doing more business than you are, look at the silver sixpence he has in the newspapers, and look out.

Look out for rain when the almanac tells you to, and if it don't come, why you can keep looking out.

The following certificate is from one of the most respectable citizens of North Kingston, in Rhode Island
North Kingston March 3, 1846
Dr Wm Bailey—Dear Sir—I have at various times considered myself great indebtedness to you,
having been so well know, through your medicine, to be restored to a perfect state of health, and I have at this time ever to remember your valuable extract of Sarsaparilla through the use of which I have been cured of a severe disease in the liver, and a general torpid state of the whole system and dyspepsia. I have from time to time tried various remedies without any visible good effects, now I am happy to say that your Sarsaparilla has cured me I am happy to hear that you are so actively engaged never in the sale of your valuable medicines—perhaps I should say blessing—it would be more appropriate for surely no one has done more to alleviate the ills that flesh is heir to than yourself If it were possible for bodily infirmities to disappear from the face of the earth, I should deem your Sarsaparilla a panacea for every complaint But one thing I am confident that the time will come when you name will be breathed forth in sweet strains of grateful praise from every full vale hamlet and city throughout our country, when there will be a general thanksgiving for the benefits derived from your valuable extract of Sarsaparilla
I have within one week heard a celebrated Elder of our town proclaiming in terms of the highest commendation the extraordinary virtues of your Sarsaparilla He had himself known it to cure people of his acquaintance who had been pronounced incurable by physicians I am, my dear
sir, Respectfully yours
